Dedication

TO
PROFESSOR EVA S. MAGLOTT
WHO, DURING THE LONG YEARS
THAT SHE HAS LABORED FOR A GREATER AND BETTER
OHIO NORTHERN, HAS
BEEN TO US AS A
MOTHER, WE DEDICATE THIS, OUR BOOK.

Foreword

To produce a book that would be in keeping with the growth of Ohio Northern has been no easy task. It is hoped that our labors have resulted in a Northern worthy of a place among its forerunners. And with this hope we present it to you, Gentle Reader, for your consideration.

The Annual

The treasured books of mem'ry gems
Suggest thoughts near the heart;
For scenes and words are placed in them
For times when friends must part,
The words concerning friends most true,
If read in future years,
Console the heart and cheer it through
Life's stormy vale of tears.

Time's realistic points in space,
Joined in the mem'ry plane,
Reveal some smiling, cheerful face
Of friend ne'er met again;
But mem'ry's plane contracts as Time
Fast counts away the days
That linked the classmates to the time
Ere parted they their ways.

Familiar faces in this book
Appear midst printed lines,
That when upon them classmates look,
They'll think of by-gone times;
For who of them dislike to think
Of school days that are gone?
Of times when they'd try hard to think
Just why the sums were wrong?

The fading scenes grow dim before
The horizons of care,
Which may have sorrows hanging o'er
Such as clouds floating there:
But through the gloom a ray appears
To cheer life's earnest way,
To dry the mists of sorrow's tears
That may becloud the day.

The bright'ning springtime brings the rays,
Dispelling chilling gloom ;
Brings forth the slumb'ring buds always
Into most fragrant bloom ;
It brings new life unto the trees,
Makes fields with clovers green ;
And singing birds and humming bees
Once more on them are seen.

Thus treasured volumes bring to mind
The mem'ries slumbering,
Awakening each one in kind
As buds are waked in spring;
They bring into the bitter strife,
Where shades of failure fall,
The cherished hopes of early life,
And sunshine over all.

Unto the gay or sad they bring,
By photographs and lines,
Like fragrance from the flow'rs in spring,
The thoughts of by-gone times;
For mem'ry gems help drive away
All thoughts of care and woe;
They bring the joys into the day
And bid the sorrows go.

The 1914 NORTHERN

Their annual bath.

The long & short of it.

"Annual" cuts only fifteen cents.

Gee what a mess!

Franklin Literary Society

Back in the year of 1871, when a small group of Northern's enthusiastic students gathered for a meeting, little did they dream that they were then forming the fundamental principles for an organization that would become historic both in name and action. The object of these hustling workers, who later were known as Franklins, was to form a society for the propagation of "LITERATURE, MORALITY and FRIENDSHIP." In pursuance of these three objects there was to be woven every possible idea for the promotion and encouragement of Reading, Reciting, Public Speaking and Parliamentary Practice; for the teaching of the Moral Code as prescribed in the Holy Scripture; and exalting the importance of courtesy and congeniality in order to form Friendship which shall remain warm and respected between the members for all time to come.

The history of the Society proves that the purposes, established by the founders of the Franklin Literary Society, have been fulfilled in every respect. During the existing of this society, a large library has been established. Many paintings, busts and statuary have been placed in the hall to adorn its walls. The society has also enjoyed the privilege of many social functions, held on Saturday afternoons, where men and women met and formed friends and acquaintances for which they have ever been grateful.

The Franklin Literary Society for several years has been very successful in many ways. Its progress has been shown both in spirit and action until today it stands foremost in character and prominence. The society has been the superior on the field of athletics; it has carried off the honors in oratory, and can boast of its share in music, art and other branches of knowledge. Hundreds of men and women who are now winning wealth and fame throughout the world owe their success to the Franklin Literary Society. It was in the Franklin Hall that their character and reputation were moulded. It was within this hall that those men and women developed their power and perfection in public speaking. It was within this hall that their spirit of loyalty, courtesy and congeniality was inculcated, teaching them that unbounded duty toward man and man and filling their hearts with that patriotic spirit for OUR GOD, OUR COUNTRY, and OUR HOME!

Until recently the Franklin Literary Society was possessed with much valuable property, consisting of a very rare library of nearly 2,000 volumes. The walls were decorated with paintings and busts and the hall was furnished with costly furniture. The value of the property was estimated to be about $3,500. But on November 4th, 1913, came an eventful hour. Fire broke out in the Administration Building and destroyed the entire property of the society. Much regret and sympathy was manifested owing to the sad misfortune which placed the society in such a position that it was without a home. Since the fire, the Franklins have held their programs in the Brown Auditorium.

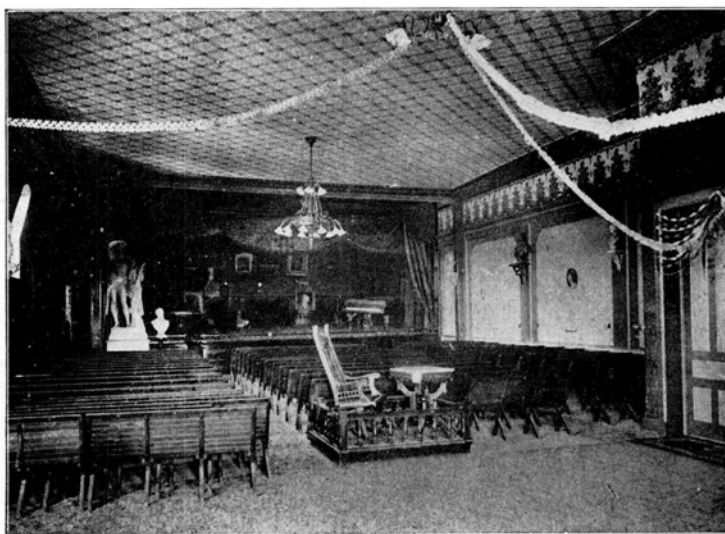

While the society has suffered a heavy loss, the Franklin Literary Society is by no means dead.

By the loyalty and enthusiasm of the members much has been done towards placing the society on a sound footing once more. Provisions have been made for a Franklin Hall in the New Administration Building, hence many improvements are in view for the near future. The Franklins are arranging matters for an extensive campaign to raise sufficient funds to defray the expenses to furnish the new hall. Busts, statuary, paintings and a large library is planned for the new home. The society will begin active work under its new constitution, which also provides for a credit system for all work performed and the granting of a graduating certificate at the end of each school year. The same provisions will be made for athletics, granting a society letter for proficiency in that line of work.

While the Franklin Literary Society has met with much misfortune and disappointment, yet it can be well said that the society is still strong. Its members who are doing their utmost to keep the society in the forefront cannot see any necessity for despair. The society has been in debt for several years, but today it has paid off its entire debt and stands free to the world. This has been done by the Franklins since the fire. It is true that the future hopes of the Franklin Literary Society have balanced in the hands of fate, but by the careful nursing on the part of every Franklin which the society has received, it can well be said that the Franklin Literary Society is on the road to recovery, and her banner of purple and white will still wave to the credit of each member.

Long will her banner wave,
Upon the sea of fame;
Long will her sailors brave
Protect her noble name.—T.

FRANKLIN ORCHESTRA

HON. I. N. KUHN
Waynesburg, Pa.

Honorable Kuhn has been a liberal supporter of the Franklin Literary Society. For several years he has donated the prize money for the Annual Oratorical Contest, which has been named in his honor. Mr. Kuhn originated the idea that the Franklins should endeavor to build a home, with modern and up-to-date facilities for literary work, athletics and social functions. The society has been considering his idea with considerable earnestness, and it is thought it will be but a short time until the Franklins will have a home of their own.

DALE R. RICE

The Philomathean Literary Society was organized thirty-five years ago. Its history thru these years has been one of marked progress. Its influence has grown until it is felt thruout the world, and its members have increased 'til they number thousands. Illustrious Philos have gone out into all parts of the globe where they will shine as beacon lights in the diadem of Northern.

Tho proud of our society's glorious past, we are more deeply concerned with her present. The year of 1913-14 is resplendent with many achievements. The fall term started with an enthusiastic corps of workers, with Geo. B. Gee as president. The outlook for the year is bright and promising. The Saturday night programs were attended with interest. All was well, until the ravages of the fire threatened to destroy our prospects. It is sadly known that all of our furnishings, all of our pictures and other possessions were momentarily swept away. This left us homeless and seemingly hopeless; but undaunted the society spirit raised from the embers and continued even stronger than before. We secured as a temporary home the Sunday School room of the Disciple church. Here the Saturday night programs have been rendered to large and interested 'audiences. This demonstrates the fact, that the success and work of the Philo society, does not depend upon the hall in which it meets; nor upon the officers who are elected, but its success does depend upon one fundamental 'thing which is necessary for the prosperity of every organization, this fundamental factor is co-operation. Meaning the earnest, enthusiastic, harmonious, working together of the constituents of a body to bring about the greatest results. Co-operation is the watchword and spirit of the Philomathean Society.

The Philo orchestra has been very faithful in rendering their valuable service to the society. Under the leadership of Mr. C. Alden, our talented flute player, our orchestra is considered as the best in the University.

We take great pride in speaking of our Basket Ball team which won first place in the inter-society contest this year. In recognition of their faithful service the society awarded them letters. Manager Fischer and Captain Walters showed their ability and skill in leading our team to victory.

The annual Cetty debating contest was held on Saturday night February twenty-eighth. The questions, which were debated were those of vital importance to the American public and which are attracting the attention of our present day legislators. The debators showed skill, ability, and extensive preparation in handling their questions. The first prize of $1 5.00 was won by Fred Feasel, the second prize, of $1 0.00 was awarded to F. R. Nelson. We are indebted to Mr. Geo. F. Cetty of Los Angeles, California, for these prizes. Already we have received the money for next year's contest. Prospective winners are urged to get busy.

One of the greatest assets of the Philomathean Literary Society is the Cetty debating club, which is also named in honor of the liberal donor of our prizes for the contest. The debating club is the auxiliary which prepares and develops able debaters and speakers for the regular society programs. By this means we recruit our ranks with trained and efficient men, thus keeping the standard of Philomatheanism at a high degree.

This year, the University faculty decided to give college credit for work done on the society platform. It has been the custom to award diplomas, so along with this new incentive of credits we have been able to produce programs that were of the best material always. Those receiving diplomas this year are Messrs. R. B. Ford, Frank B. Hoffer, J. H. Haupt, Fred Feasel, and J. F. Manning.

We have given a brief history and have reviewed the activities of the expiring year. Now let us turn our eyes to the future. Our vision is accosted with bright hopes of a grander Philo hall and a greater Philomathean Society. We feel extremely fortunate in having $1,500.00 insurance which with various donations from our loyal Philo alumni will help to materialize our dreams of an ideal Philo home.

Brief History of the Adelpian Literary Society

The Adelpian Literary Society was founded September 3 1880. The sister societies already existing had become very acrimonious and the establishment of a mediator between them became necessary. This fact was no sooner visible than it was perceived by the eagle eye of the founder, Dr. Lehr, and forthwith executed.

The new society suffered from many new and peculiar epithets but its true appellation was Adelpia, a brother. The hidden talent, however, soon began to make itself felt and from that time till now the society has been looked upon in its true relationship.

On the 15th of April, 1890, the society was incorporated under the laws of Ohio. With its charter it received all the rights and privileges of a corporate body. Since that time its growth has been phenomenal.

Much credit is due to Professor and Mrs. Maglott for work in aiding us and especially to Dr. Lehr for the origin and defense of Adelpia.

THE PAST YEAR

The clouds of adversity have long since broken, and the sunlight of prosperity has shown itself in a manner such as not even the most hopeful had anticipated. We have indeed been fortunate during the past year and are indeed thankful that we were permitted to escape the fire dragon that wrought havoc with the homes of our sister societies. We rejoice that we have been able to lend assistance to them in their time of trouble, and that they are to have more magnificent homes in the new Administration building. Perfect harmony has existed among the societies thruout the year and all have moved steadily forward in one accord.

Our hall has been much used as a class room and auditorium by the various organizations of the University during the year, and gladly have all Adelpians shared with them their literary home. President Smith and Secretary Wright have freely assisted in the upkeep of the hall and furnishings during this period of unrelenting use. Sympathy on all sides has pervaded the atmosphere.

The literary work of the past year has been of the highest order and fully up to the standard of former years. New and willing hands have steadily stood at the helm and have guided the Adelpian ship safely upon her voyage. Original work such as has not been known for years has been the specialty of the year. Such a variety of literary work as has been staged has never been eclipsed. Parliamentary practice has been a strong feature of the Friday evening sessions. Our orchestra has been without a peer. The attendance has been excellent. The spirit the finest, and we have been ever on the increase in both.

The instituting of business methods into the workings of the society has been one of the chief innovations of the year. This has put confidence into all the members of the society. The granting of the Adelpian Diploma and the establishment of the College Credit plan by the University has been a great incentive to lure performers onto the stage. Six diplomas have been issued to date for required work, and the students have learned that the real benefit comes not from the winning of the diploma itself but from the preparation and rendition of the various numbers upon the stage.

A literary society must be judged by the quantity and the quality of the work it produces; judged by this standard the Adelpian Society has no superiors. The society culture along social, moral and literary lines has produced, and may it continue to produce men and women who can and WILL go forth to do the work which the world demands them to do.

With the Anchor and the Shield let us go on to the full realization of our motto, "Ad astra per Aspera."

HON. FRANK B. WILLIS, A. M., LL.B.

Congressman Eighth District of Ohio, two terms. Professor of Law and Economics, O. N. U. Candidate for the Republican Nomination for Governor of Ohio, 1914.

Unimpeachable in Character, Noble in Personality, Aggressive in State Craft, a Statesman of First Rank.

His record in public life is clean and will stand the closest scrutiny. Great, big, honest, noble man of the common people, unafraid of the boss class of politician, not tied to any machine or organization. He is a MAN, a lawyer, a Promoter of good Government. The brightest star in the Adelphean sky.

What Mr. Willis Says of the Literary Society

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Washington, Feb. 17, 1914

“* * * * * I certainly am glad to be remembered by all Adelpians in the great work they are doing. I shall never forget the many happy hours and days I have spent in the Adelpian Hall.

As I have said publicly many times there is no work which I undertook to do in the Ohio Northern University which was of so great value to me as the work done in the literary society.

I wish the young men and women who are now in school in Ada could understand fully what training upon the stages of the literary society means to them. If they could understand this now, as they certainly will in after life, they would avail themselves of every opportunity to participate in literary work. A training is thereby obtained which cannot otherwise be secured.

Thanking you for your kind remembrance and wishing the best of everything for the Adelpian Society and her sister societies, the Philomathean and the Franklin, I am

Very truly your Adelpian brother,

DR. C. W. CRILE

Dr. C. W. Crile, of Cleveland, Ohio, was last year elected to a fellowship in the Royal College of Surgeons of Great Britain in recognition of his recently announced discovery of a method for the prevention of surgical shock known as "anoci-association." This system practically reduces to zero the amount of the shock following a surgical operation. Dr. Crile's name is associated with those of but two other great lights in the surgical world; Morton, who discovered the anesthetic properties of ether, and Lister, the discoverer of antiseptics. The honor above mentioned goes only to men whose services have contributed materially to the development of surgery. Prevention of shock in surgical cases means a decrease in mortality; it also means a great reduction in physical suffering. In these days when surgery is so freely used these two advantages constitute a notable offering to humanity. Dr. Crile has given his discovery to his profession and to the world following the best traditions in medicine, without any attempt to exploit it or commercialize it.

Dr. Crile graduated from the Science Department of the Ohio Northern University in 1885 when the Adelphian Literary Society was in its infancy. Since that time he has won an international reputation in the field of surgery. In the midst of his busy career he has shown his loyalty to the old society by establishing in 1912, an Annual Oratorical Prize of $25.00. This timely benefaction will increase the literary standard of the society and stimulate the greatest possible oratorical excellence. Ohio Northern and Adelphia certainly have no right to be prouder of anyone than Dr. Crile.

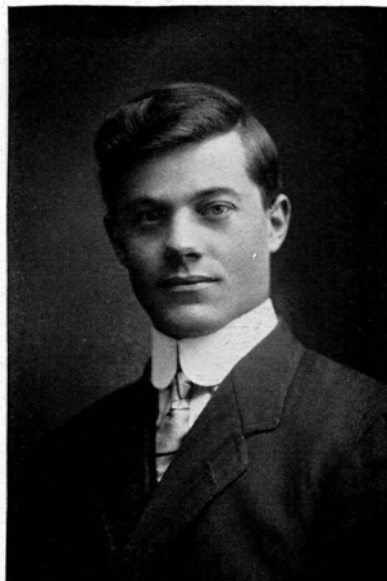

Long may the name of Dr. Crile, a true servant of humanity, be cherished in the hearts of the adherents of the Blue and Cold.

A Western Sunset

By GEO. M. BRINTON

O the richness in the glory
As the glow of setting sun
Paints upon the clouds the story
Pictures of earth's joys begun.
In the dawning of the morning,
Through the brighter time of noon,
Using all the tints from morning
Till the eve of deep'ning gloom.

Paints on clouds in all the splendor
Nature has at her command,
Richest shades of changing color,
Making western sunsets grand ;
Paints in one collective picture,
All the beauties of the day,
Giving visions of the future
When life fades from earth away.

Now the crimson blush of morning
Blends into night's sombre grays;
Now the lighter shades of morning
Blend with sunset's golden rays;
Now the blue and white and crimson
Float upon a staff of gold,
And beside the white and crimson,
Twinkling stars in blue unfold.

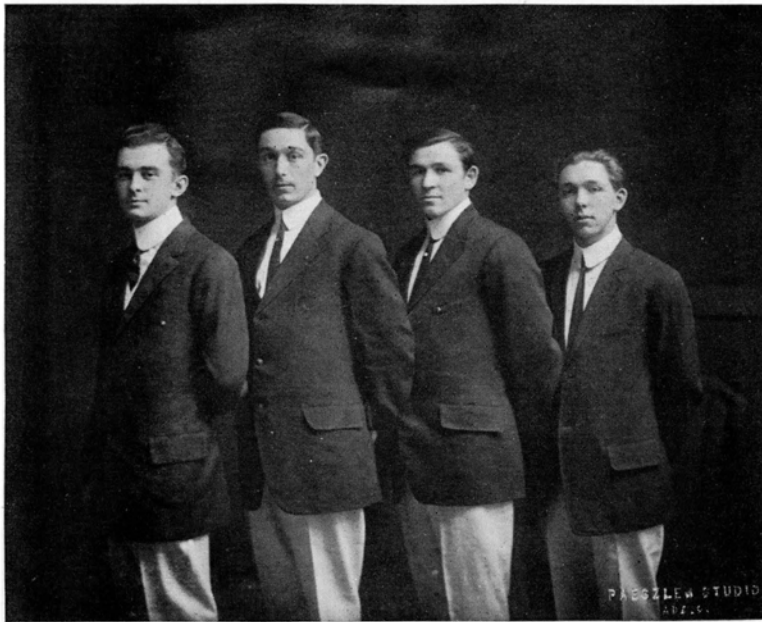

And the clouds, like, forms of angels,
Bear the emblem of the free,
Floating, like the guarding angels,
O'er the lands of liberty ;
And it seems that heav'n's bright hues
Touching robes of spotless white,
Reflected all the angels' virtues
In a flood of heav'nly light.

Now they form in lines of splendor
Just before the setting sun ;
Now they float in 'countlessnumber, —
Emblems of new glories won ;
And the purple, red and golden
Blend into the sky of blue,
Making fields of greenish golden,
Tinted with earth's richest hue.

O the beauty of the picture
Seen from western mountain peak!
O that words could paint that picture,
Tell of thoughts the soul would speak!
For it seems that angel spirits,
Floating round the setting sun,
Are but calling earthly spirits
When, at last, the day is done.

And it seems that deep'ning twilight,
All the land in stillness holds,
As the ling'ring gleam of sunlight,
Heav'n's light to earth unfolds,
As if it would tell the story,
In the glowing tints above,
Of the grand, celestial glory
That surrounds the throne of love.

Absence

By GEO. M. BRINTON

There's pleasure in the snow-clad hills
Where bends the tow'ring pine,
And in the vales where rippling rills
Along their pathways wind ;
It's pleasure there to catch the fish,
To shoot the bounding deer,
But, somehow, more than all, I wish
For times when you are near.

'Tis pleasure o'er the snow to glide
Where all is spotless white;
Where the wild fox is wont to hide
To wait approaching night ;
'Tis pleasure there to follow on
Old Reynard's winding track,
But during times when you are gone,
Somehow I wish you back.

There's pleasure on the rippling lake
Whose waters bright and clear,
Reflect the sunsets which oft make
Heav'n's beauties seem more dear;
'Tis pleasure there to cast the fly
That lures the gamey trout,
But, somehow, as the days go by,
I wish you were about.

'Tis pleasure on the busy street,
To mingle with the throng,
And on each morn the sunshine greet
That brings the day along;
'Tis pleasure, from the business strife,
To rest at close of day,
But, somehow, something's gone from life,
Whenever you're away.

There's pleasure in the silent books
Whose pages oft unfold
Mind pictures of earth's favored nooks
Where all the gems of gold,
Whose words of beauty, grace, and love
Echo life's sweetest song,
But, somehow, more than all, I love
Your voice to sing their song.

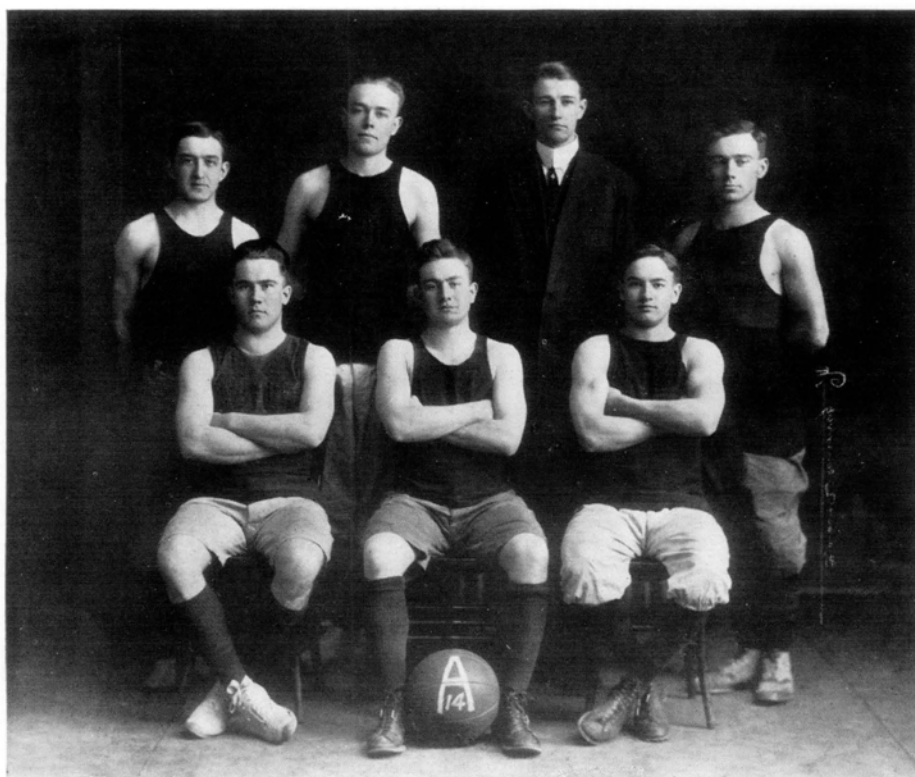

Someone has said that absence makes
The heart much fonder grow,
That gone must be the fallen flakes
Ere we enjoy the snow;
But joys of music best are known
Throughout each passing year,
Not when the sweet-voiced bird has flown,
But while it lingers near.

Northern vs. Detroit

The debating season of O. N. U., opened at Detroit. The question was, "Resolved, that there should be municipal ownership of public utilities." It was affirmed by Lynch, O'Regan, and Langdon of Detroit. The Northern trio was composed of H. A. Manahan, captain, J. A. Nietz, and W. L. Manahan. The judges, Judge Manton of Toledo, Judge Johnson, Toledo, and C. A. Wormley, Findlay, decided in favor of Detroit.

This same trio, however, were victors over the strong Mt. Union team in the Northern, Mt. Union and Muskingum triangle debate. Moore, Steele and Shetler of Mt. Union affirmed the Question. The judges were Frinfrock, W. R. U., Lean, Wooster, and Dr. Crecelius of Sandusky.

DETROIT DEBATING TEAM

W. L. MANAHAN, H. A. MANAHAN, NIETZ

Northern vs. Muskingum

The question in the triangular debate was, "Resolved, that municipalities in the United States having a population of 25,000 or over, should own and operate their own railway system." Our affirmative team composed of John Telban, captain, C. L. Kusian and E. V. Reed met Muskingum at New Concord.

The judges, Ketchum, O. S. U., Harshman, O. W. U. and Arter, Cambridge, O., decided in favor of Muskingum.

Muskingum can well feel proud as she was a double victor in the triangle debate.

MUSKINGUM DEBATING TEAM

KUSIAN, REED, TELBAN, CAPT. ; BOUNPANE

Northern vs. Antioch

Ohio Northern debated Antioch on Friday evening, April 10. The question was, "Resolved, that the principle of the recall should be applied to the judiciary of Ohio." The following men upheld the affirmative for Northern: Gilbert L. Kusian, John Telban, Jr., and J. A. Nietz, captain. The negative team from Antioch was composed of Earl Senseman, Wilbor Cory, and J. A. Oppy, captain. The debate was judged by Judge John C. Hover, Bellefontaine, O., Supt. J. L. Estrich, Forest, O., and Rev. M. J. Bradshaw, Ada, O. A unanimous decision was rendered in favor of the affirmative.

AFFIRMATIVE ANTIOCH TEAM

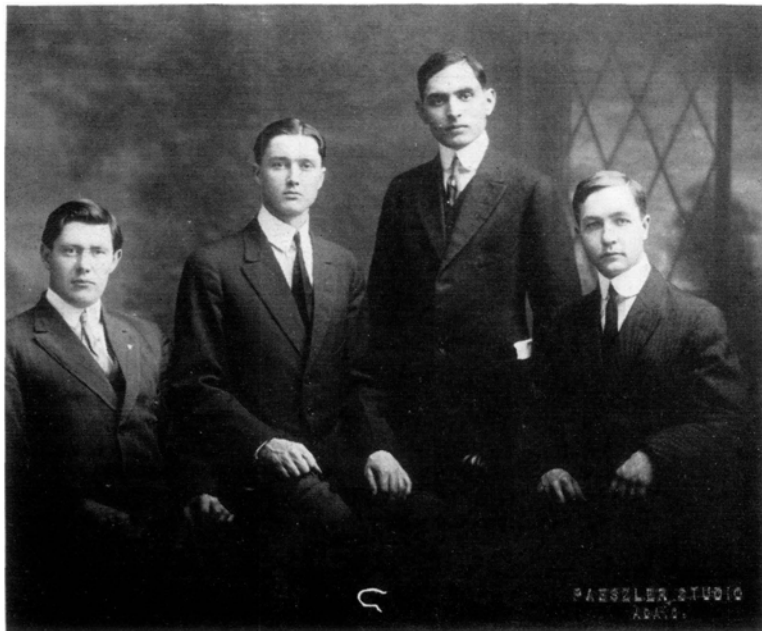

RILEY, HOFFER, BRINTON, ROWE

Northern vs. Antioch

The negative team for Northern was composed of Harry Portz, Blase Bounpane, E. V. Reed and Fred Feasel, alternate. They met and defeated Antioch at Yellow Springs, thus resulting in a double victory for Northern. We may well feel proud of the manner in which our debaters defeated such strong teams, being so greatly handicapped by the loss of our library. However, under the instruction of such men as Professors Crecelius, Beer and Dice there are bound to be results.

Northern looks forward to the greatest debate of the year when Detroit will meet Northern. May we gain a clear victory over Detroit and thus make it four out of six.

Washington Birthday Orations

The Washington's birthday program was rendered in chapel on Monday morning, February 23.

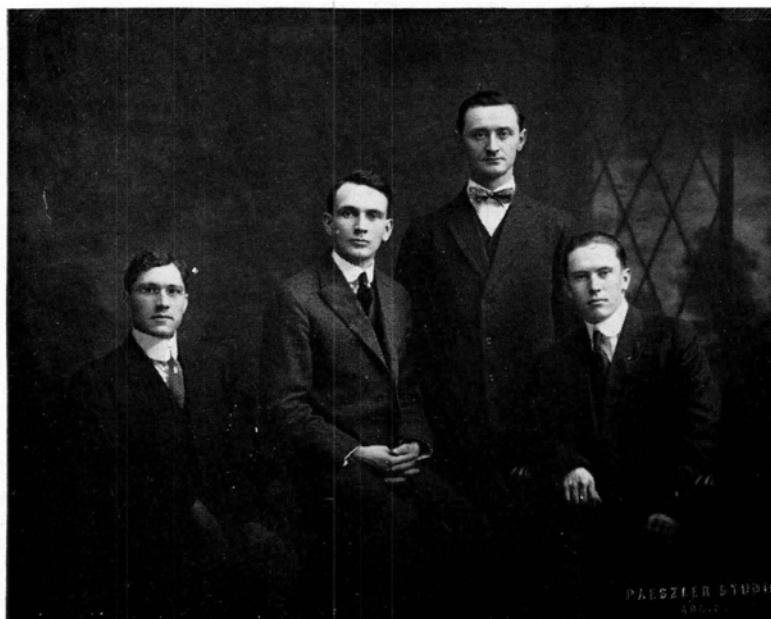

The different literary societies and the law department were represented as follows :

Philomathean—Oration, Vision of the Age.....	Frank Hoffer
Franklin—Oration, Patriotism of Peace.....	F. I. Rowe
Adelphian—Oration, Spirit of Liberty.....	Geo. M. Brinton
Law Department—Oration, Public Opinion and Law.....	C. W. Riley

Several vocal selections were given by Don McDowell.

The orators were at their best and gave their carefully prepared orations in such a forceful manner as to waken a true patriotic spirit in the audience, which, together with the vocal selections, made the morning replete with enthusiasm.

Cosmopolitan Club

The Cosmopolitan Club of O. N. U. was organized in 1908 by L. A. Cano, Mexico, who was elected its first president. The aim was to foster the spirit of brotherhood among the students of different nationalities in the institution, by considering political, economic, social and religious problems of other lands.

1909-12—It showed no activity. There are no records.

1912 Mid-term—Henry M. Kaplan, Russia, was chosen president. By his energetic effort the club became very active.

1913 Spring term—Toyonobu Domen, Japan, was chosen president. The club was thoroughly reorganized with a membership of thirty. A constitution was framed. In May the club was admitted to associate membership in Corda Fratres.

1913 Summer term—J. R. Garcia, Porto Rico, president.

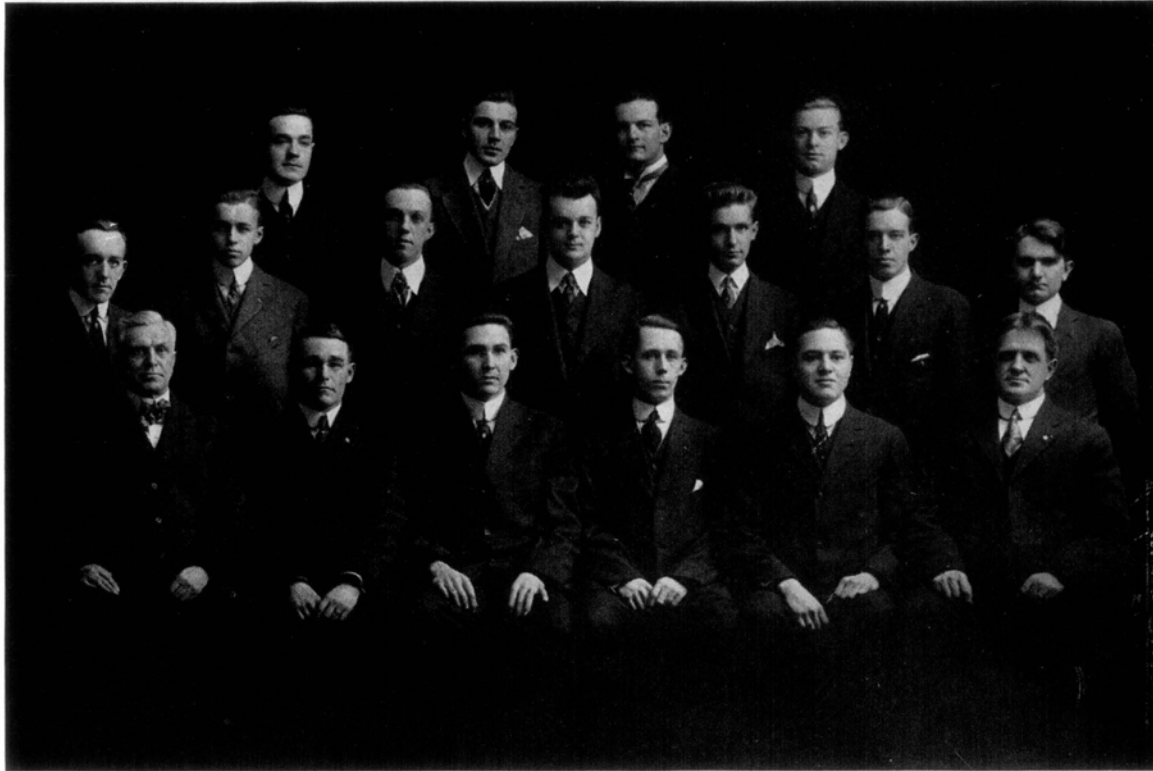

1913 Fall Quarter—A. Perez de Lara, Mexico, president. Very successful, members representing over eleven nationalities.

1914 Winter Quarter—Miss Koharig Bedrosian, Armenia, Turkey, president, whose ceaseless effort to promote at all times the interests of the club had a marked effect. The club sent Toyonobu Domen as our first delegate to the International Congress of Corda Fratres at the State University of Iowa and as a result the club was admitted to active membership.

New Jersey Club

The New Jersey Club of the Ohio Northern University, was organized in December, 1913.

Its organization provides a means of closer relationship, more sincere co-operation, and assures a more hearty welcome to all students from New Jersey, than could be possible otherwise.

It brings together the men who later will be the leaders of the State's activities.

It is not our desire to simply work for those students from our home State, but also to welcome the co-operation of the faculty and students of the most active working factors of the Institution.

The Y. M. C. A. at Ohio Northern is as permanent as the University itself. This fact was verified last fall when the rooms of the "Y" met complete ruin. The men of the University rose nobly to the situation; the devotional work continued uninterrupted; the Gospel teams carried their work to Lima, Forest, the city churches and neighboring localities. The efficient hand of A. J. Morgan, the President, could be seen at every turn. He, by the aid of his able cabinet and the hearty co-operation of the student body succeeded in liquidating a debt of $250.

After the fire, a temporary home was secured in the Ziller House, where the headquarters of the organization will remain until the new apartments are completed in the Lehr Memorial.

In the devotional departments, not only were the regular Friday evening devotional meetings ably addressed by the Professors and Students of the University, but such men as Rev. W. L. Constein of Lima, also aided in improving the spiritual atmosphere around the campus.

The organization was unusually fortunate this year, in having for its President Mr. A. J. Morgan, a man of business, a keen observer, a successful mixer, and above all a man with high religious ideals. His influence on the campus and natural ability as a leader, stood the Association well in hand, in ably directing it through the difficult crises brought about by the fire. Mr. Morgan's influence and presence will be greatly missed when he leaves the school this Spring.

Y. W. C. A

The past year of the association has been one of quite varied experiences. Although our rooms were destroyed and the plans for the year suddenly upset at its beginning, the vital part of the work went on unchanged. Since that time plans have been carried out for refurnishing of new rooms. Mother Maglott kindly gave the use of her office over to the girls for a reading room and other ladies of the faculty donated furnishings.

The well-attended, midweek meetings were held all winter in Adelphian hall. Taffy pullings, receptions, pink teas and the County Fair contributed to the social life of the University. The per cent of members among the students is good compared with other schools and ranks well in the list of associations belonging to the World's Federation. Among the different departments making up the cabinet, earnest, efficient work has been done. Financial reports are good. Quite a number of old members have sent contributions toward refitting new rooms, which have been gratefully received.

The aim of the Y. W. C. A. is to train college girls for practical and efficient womanhood. From among the college associations workers are chosen to be the leaders in city organizations, also various other lines of philanthropic work. Northern girls are doing their part in carrying out this ideal. The record of the past is excellent: the future full of promise.

The Northern Light

The Northern Light of October, 1912, was the first paper edited by the students of the O. N. U. It first appeared as a magazine but after a few months was changed to a bi-weekly newspaper. After the beginning of last September it came out each week. Under the careful and efficient management of Editor-in-Chief W. L. Manahan and his staff of twenty-five, wide awake members it has been steadily making improvement. The paper keeps in touch with all the different departments of school and social organizations thru their representatives in the body of staff members.

Financial reports were made at each business meeting, held every other week. Thru the efforts of the business manager who superintended the subscription campaign, and the advertising manager, the Light has been able to meet all expenses. Editorials and special reports relating to the activities of the University were sent in by previously appointed persons, while contributions were welcomed from any student of any department. The aim was to make it a paper of, for and by the students.

During the year special issues were published and among these might be mentioned the Engineering, Athletic, Pharmacy, and Fire numbers. Thirteen hundred of the Engineering edition were sold and fifteen hundred copies of the Fire issue were on sale on the morning following the fire. At present the regular circulation is between six and seven hundred. Our school has been enabled to keep in touch with many others thru the long list of exchanges, some coming from distant states. The rays of the Northern Light have penetrated to many homes and offices; thru its pages the spirit of the University is carried to her many friends.

Great credit is due the last Editor-in-Chief. His standard was high, his efforts untiring and the attainments marked. If its rate of progress is continued, a few years will see it the ideal of its kind.

Football 1913

The call for football candidates early in September, by Coach Peters was answered by a squad of about fifty men. Of this number there were only two who were "N" men of last season, Captain Stump and "Babe" Adams. However, among the candidates were to be found McGannon and D. Gardner, both of whom had made their N during the season of 1911. From this lot of green material Coach Peters set to work to develop a winning team.

This team had to face one of the strongest schedules ever arranged for Ohio Northern. Out of eleven games played only three of them were staged at home, all of which were victories. Toward the end of the season the playing of the team was remarkable. The new men were plowing the line of their opponents like veterans.

THE GAMES

The first game of the season was played with the University of Pittsburgh at Pittsburgh. The Northern boys were outweighed twenty pounds to the man but nevertheless they fought every minute of the time.

The warriors from O. N. U. seemed better skilled in the use of the forward pass than were their opponents. It was by this route that Northern crossed the goal line of the University of Pittsburgh. Cardner, Captain Stump and Crisbaum starred in this game.

The second contest was played with the University of Notre Dame at South Bend, Ind. Here again the home boys were outweighed even by a greater margin than at Pittsburgh.

The first evenly matched game was played with Denison at Granville. Here one of the most equal battles of the entire season was fought. Northern crossed her opponent's goal line early in the game and the score was 7-0 in favor of O. N. U. until the last four minutes of play.

Thereby uncovering some new trick plays the Northern ranks were simply taken by storm. When the whistle blew the score was 16-7 in favor of Denison.

The next two games were played against the University of Kentucky and Transylvania College at Lexington, Ky. Both of these games should have been victories for O. N. U. but because of the absence of Fletcher the team was in poor condition.

Following the Kentucky games the first home game was played against Antioch upon Alumni field. Northern went into the game seeking revenge for the defeats early in the season. The lads from Antioch battled bravely but the final score was 46-0 in favor of Northern.

On Oct. 1, the strong Otterbein team of Westerville came up to add the Northern's laurels to their long list of victories. Otterbein had defeated both Ohio Wesleyan and Ohio University earlier in the season and they came to Ada thinking they had a perfect right to a victory here.

The game was a battle royal. It seemed during the first few minutes of the play that the battle would be equal. Watts at Quarter for Otterbein was a star as was Fletcher in the same position for Northern. The Northern boys displayed some of the greatest team work of the season. When the whistle blew the score was Northern 19, Otterbein 7.

At this time in the season the disastrous fire visited O. N. U. destroying the entire outfit of the football team. This would have justified Northern in cancelling the remainder of her schedule but the following Saturday found her team, without having had any practice during the week playing Marietta at Marietta. The game was one of the hardest fought of the year and would undoubtedly have been won by O. N. U. but for the disablement of Fletcher.

Upon November 15th, the greatest game of the year was played. That was the day the Northernites journeyed to Alliance and demonstrated to the Mt. Unionites that there were other teams in the state that could play football besides themselves. The game was carried on three-fourths of the time in Mount's territory. It was only by the hardest luck that Northern was prohibited from scoring. They demonstrated also to the Mount boys that if they ever wished to get back their goat it must be done by some other way than football. The score was 0-0.

The following Saturday Heidelberg University journeyed over to Ada expecting to defeat Northern by a small score. They had come within one point of defeating Wooster and Wooster had played Mt. Union a tie game, 0-0. The boys from Tiffin, however, soon learned that in Northern they had found a different team than they had in Wooster. When the game closed they had been given an overwhelming defeat by the score of 32-0. The game was called on account of darkness with nine minutes yet to play or the score would have been much larger. The last game of the season was played at Detroit against the University of Detroit upon Thanksgiving day. The result was a victory for Northern by the low score 7-0.

To what shall we attribute the success of O. N. U.? We believe it was due to four things—the Varsity, the second team, Coach Peters and the enthusiastic support of the student body.

THE MEN

COACH PETERS

Probably the greatest athlete O. N. U. ever produced and certainly the greatest of recent years is Carl Peters, the coach of this year's football and basket ball teams. "Pete" was a star in his high school days.

Beginning in 1906 he played four years on the crack Fostoria High School team, during which time his team won the state interscholastic championship three times. In 1909 he was captain of the Fostoria team.

Coming to O. N. U. in 1910 he at once became the mainstay of the team at full-back, at which position he had few equals in the state. During the season of 1911 he was both captain and coach, incidentally turning out one of Northern's best football teams.

Not only is Peters a star in football, but he is a master of basket ball and track, being twice captain of O. N. U.'s basket ball team and a big point winner in the field meets.

We are justly proud of "Pete" and the great football and basket ball teams he has turned out this year.

To him we attribute not a small part of our successful athletics.

CAPTAIN STUMP

Captain Claire Stump played his third and last year of college football with O. N. U. He came to Northern three years ago from Bradford H. S., winning a place at half-back on Northern's 1911 team. He is a drop kicker of the first water. During the fall of 1912 he was shifted to quarter, where he played a consistent game throughout the season.

In recognition of his splendid work at quarter he was elected captain for 1913. "Stumpy" has won an "N" in football, baseball and basket ball and is one of the most popular men in the University, both on and off the field.

He again played half-back this year and was one of the team's strongest defensive players.

"BABE" ADAMS

Captain-elect Adams was likely one of the most valuable men on this year's team. He plays at tackle and half-back equally well. He is not only one of the fastest men on the team but he is a good defensive player. In college he ranks as a Junior in the Law Department. He can predict a great team next year.

"DAVY" GARDNER

Gardner was not a new man at football to Northern enthusiasts, having played a star game at left end for Northern during the season of 1911. In the fall of 1912 he played at half-back on the University of Mississippi team and was mentioned by "Colliers" as a candidate for one of the all-Southern in that position.

There being plenty of half-backs this year "Davy" was shifted to left tackle, where he played a consistent game throughout the season. On defensive work Gardner is a star. Only twice during the entire Otterbein game did Plott send his plowing machine through Davy's side of the line. Gardner graduates in June and has made an enviable record for himself.

"FLETCH" FLETCHER

The directing brain of the team was Ralph Fletcher and he could certainly fill the job. To say that much of any man is real praise. Most of the passes that made Hill and Cobb famous started from his hands. He throws accurately and for a long distance. His punting was unexcelled. Fletcher had played a year at quarter upon Chicago's Freshman team, and during the season of 1912 filled the same position at the University of Mississippi.

The Detroit News named him as the best quarter-back in the Middle West. Fletcher is an all-round athlete and plays baseball and basket ball equally as well.

"CHUCK" FYKE

Probably the greatest find of Coach Peters was in Fyke, Northern's star full-back. He showed sterling football quality throughout the season. He runs low and hits the line hard. Heidelberg's line could do nothing to stop him, he going through from time to time for a gain of 8 to 10 yards. "Chuck" is a hard worker and a sticker. Being only a Sophomore he should play two more seasons. In him Captain Adams will have a most valuable asset next fall.

"FUZZY" EThERTON

Etherton got into a Varsity uniform rather late in the season and did splendid work at right half-back.

"Fuzzy" is an Ada High School product and was captain of his team the year they won the championship of Northwestern Ohio. He is a Junior in college and should do some of his best playing next fall.

"Ty" COBB

Cobb was another product of Peter's green timber. He was a fast end and always played his man to a finish. Cobb is a plugger. With another year's experience he should be one of the best ends in the state.

"SKEETER" HILL

Hill was Northern's best end man. Especially was he accurate in receiving the forward passes of Fletcher or Stump. It didn't seem to make any difference to "Skeeter" how the ball was thrown he was always on the job.

You should have seen him Thanksgiving day at Detroit. This is Hill's Junior year and he should be heard from next season.

"RED" BOESGER

Chief among the red-headed individuals who figure in Ohio Northern's history is "Red" Boesger. He was O. N. U.'s center and another new product of Peter's coaching. What Boesger did not learn about the job ought not be taught. He is an accurate passer, always on the job, sticks to the game and grits his teeth. This is Boesger's Senior year.

"CAS" RIES

Ries was one of the men developed during the spring football practice. "Cas" came back in the fall in good condition and went in with a vengeance to win his place upon the team. He was one of the new men who got into the first game at Pittsburg. In a practice game Ries broke his hand in mid-season and was compelled to sit on the bench until the last game with Culver. He plays equally well at guard and tackle. Ries is a Junior and should play his best football next fall.

"DUSTY" DUSTMAN

Dustman is not only competent to captain a military company but he is a star in football. Tackle and guard are the positions from which he made holes in our opponent's line.

Dustman graduates in June.

"MICKY" MCGANNON

Undoubtedly one of the biggest hearted Irishmen that ever came to Northern. "Micky" says he is not Irish and can prove the fact by referring you to his fourth cousin, Daniel O'Connell.

He was playing his second year upon the Varsity. At tackle or guard he was a wonder. He simply put on that great smile of his and went at it. This is McGannon's last year at Northern.

"MAC" MCCANDLES

"Mac" is a native of the Hawaiian Islands. He came to us as an all-round athlete from Honolulu University. He started in the season at guard and was one of Northern's strongest men on both defensive and offensive work.

"Mac" is a Junior and will be with Northern next year.

"PEG" RIGGIN

Riggin was one of O. N. U.'s heaviest and best guards. At breaking up plays before they were really started was his strong point. In the Heidelberg game he frequently spilled the runner before he had run two feet. With another year's coaching he should play a fine brand of football next season.

"SHORTY" LONG

Prof. Long was our little faculty manager. He was always found rooting for Northern. Some of the boys said it was hard to tell whether Prof. was a married man or not when there were peanuts or girls around.

The Seconds

Of all the thankless jobs on the face of the earth, that of playing football on the scrub team is the last word. Once every year, perhaps, the student body is lectured on the big part the scrubs play in the success of the Varsity—after that all the glory is accorded the fifteen men on the first squad while the scrubs get the exercise.

Coming out night after night in all kinds of weather, drawing on shapeless mud-stiffened, faded jerseys, torn, unpadded mole-skins, mismated shoes and scrap head guards—then standing the brunt of a two hour battle with the Varsity, during which, if they do good work the Varsity is called down, if poor themselves are tongue-lashed by the coach—is it any wonder so few have the school spirit to stick through the entire season?

The scrubs are not even allowed to develop a crack team, for as soon as one of their number develops more than mediocre ability he is promoted to the first squad, where he is an added menace as well as a loss to the second team, because he knows their signals. No one bothers if a scrub is kicked on the head in a scrimmage; everyone blames him if he hurts his Varsity opponent; his life is one continual of charge, get tramped over and charge again.

He is kept speeded up by coaches as remorseless as sweat-shop foremen. He gets no petting and pampering like the Varsity man, and yet he is always on the job to take his beating.

He is always full of hopes which he knows will not be fulfilled for, how many times in real life does the scrub rush into the game a minute before the game is over, take the star's place, scoop up the pigskin, and scud over the last white line for the winning score? Not many—so says the Case Tech. Each reader is privileged to say "Amen."

Among those who did the scrubs' job during the season and out of whom in the fall of 1914 will come a still greater team than the one they helped to make were, King (captain), L. Cardner, Dawson, Wilcox, Friedley, Newell, Salland, Dickie, Patterson, Spellman, Winslow, Brooks, Judson, Evans, Davis and Kneisley.

These stalwart young fellows however won a few laurels for themselves when the Varsity was not looking. Out of five games played with other colleges they won four and lost one. Their goal was not crossed by another team except Culver M. A. Such a record merits the commendation of all.

The Half Back's Dream

This is the dream the half-back had
When the final game was done;
The back who had starred through the rough campaign
With many a brilliant run;
The back who had shattered many a line
And fought with a tiger's soul,
Who had ripped and smashed and hammered and slashed
His way to the distant goal.

He looked on the white-chalked field again
And heard his signal call—
And swinging low for a daring dash
He reached for the well-passed ball;
But just as the way beyond seemed clear—
Just as he reached the line,
A guard by the name Calculus
Broke through and cracked his spine.

He swung to the left for a sudden shift,
But finished a gory wreck,
For a bloke named Horace hustled him back
And sat on his thick red neck;
And Pliny, Catullus, Euripides—and
All of the old time host
Surged in with many a savage welt
In the place where it hurt the most.

This is the dream the half-back had
When battered and sore and weak,
He dropped the ball with a howl of fear
And fled with a piercing shriek;
“I thought,” he yelled, “they had changed the rules—
Making the game less rough—
But a bunch of muckers have come again,
Pulling the old-time stuff.”

—Colliers.

After the Football Game

The football game was over
And at the parlor grate,
A maid and a long-haired youth
Were lingering rather late.
They talked of punts and drop-kicks,
But found it rather tame
Till Cupid put his nose-guard on
And butted in the game.
Quoth he, "It's mighty funny if
I don't arrange a match."
So he lined the couple up
And made them toe the scratch.

The youth was growing nervous 'neath
The weight of new-found bliss,
And he kind of thought the scrimmage ought
To end up with a kiss;
He charged upon the center,
He tackled left and right
And the way they held that chair for downs
Was simply out of sight;
He tried an osculation, just
An amateur affair,
But lost it on a fumble, and
Instead it struck the air.

Then as he landed on her ear
He heard the maiden say,
"You're penalized for holding, Jim,
Likewise for offside play."
With set teeth he tried another,
This time succeeded fine,
For he scored an easy touchdown on
The crimson two-yard line.
And as they sat there by the grate,
Communing soul to soul
The parlor door swung open and
Her father kicked the goal.

Basket Ball

This being the first year the students of O. N. U. have paid a regular athletic fee, it is the first season of genuine basket ball for our institution. When Captain Judson and Coach Peters made their first call for men, a wealth of material responded. The Ada Armory was used for practice and the management secured the permission from the faculty to use Brown Auditorium for the regular contests. The Brown makes a very good place for the great indoor game. With the proper arrangement this building will make a splendid gym, this being the intention of the authorities, as soon as the Lehr and Administration buildings are built.

Northern had an excellent schedule and a great team. The brand of basket ball the boys were playing toward the end of the season would have defeated the best of college teams. Only one game was lost upon the home floor. This was dropped to Heidelberg at the beginning of the season because two of the regulars were out of the game. Five of the strongest colleges in the state were played upon the home floor. As a result of this four games were won and one lost. Of the seven inter-collegiate games played upon foreign floors three were won and four lost. This is an enviable record for any quintet. The college spirit at home games ran high, the team having the unanimous support of both student body and faculty. The genuine "Northernism" could be felt at each contest.

The success of team is due largely to the efficient and careful coaching of Carl Peters. This, coupled with a willingness of the men to learn, made such an aggregation possible.

THE MEN "JUD" JUDSON

One of the primary requirements for the success of any team in athletics is to possess a worthy captain. In Judson, Northern had found the right man. There was never a harder worker, or cleaner player ever stepped upon a basket ball court. Believing in this kind of playing he set a brilliant example for his men. Every student of the O. N. U. admires "Jud" and the fine team he helped build up. A better guard, or center, Northern has never produced. He is fast upon his feet and an accurate passer and basket shooter. "Jud" is only a Junior and we expect to hear greater things from him in his Senior year.

"BOB" BYRON

Byron is an Ada H. S. product of the best caliber. At guard he played a wonderful game throughout the season. Whenever the score was getting close the signal Byron generally dropped the ball in the basket. He plays a fast, hard game and is the kind of an athlete to stand the knocks. "Bob" is only a Sophomore, this being his first basket ball. If he starts in next season at the same place he left off this, he will have few equals anywhere.

"KEM" KEMERY

The greatest find of the season was Kemery, left forward. When Mt. Union came to Northern they had the entire team deputized to watch him. However it didn't make any difference to Kemery for he shot six baskets just to show them how. When it comes to making long shots he is unexcelled. He covers the floor like a flash and his passing is accurate and speedy. "Kem" is in his Junior year and will doubtless be the greatest asset to next year's team.

"Bud" ENGH

Kemery's playing mate was small but mighty. Engh though the lightest man on the team was one of the most reliable basket getters. Whenever he procured the ball with a reasonable distance of the basket it meant an additional two points for Northern. He played the same brand of ball throughout the season. Engh is a Junior and will again be in the game next season.

"STUMPY" STUMP

Last but not least is our old friend Stump. Although he was late in the season getting started he was a veritable whirlwind. At right guard few were the baskets any opponent succeeded in shooting. As a point getter he was unexcelled, getting seven baskets in the Marietta game. Stump is good at dribbling and often went the entire length of the floor for a basket. This is Stump's Senior year and when he graduates in June Northern will lose a man who has done much for her athletics.

CHRISTY-McALLISTER

Christy and McAllister acted the role of subs. Ever ready and in condition to take the floor at a moment's notice. They were of unestimable value to the team.

THE TEAM

The team work of this 1913-'14 quintette was unsurpassed by any college team appearing upon the home floor. Their passing and basket shooting was good. Furthermore there is one thing more which can be said of this team which is very fitting. Every man was a gentleman. Not once during the entire season was a Northern man accused of playing "dirty" ball. This is certainly a record of which the school and men can justly be proud.

Baseball 1913

Northern's baseball team of 1913 was winner. When one stops to consider the fact that only two reliable pitchers were at hand we marvel that O. N. U. won so many games. Captain Fairless assisted by Malloy did some very efficient coaching at the beginning of the season. About forty men were out in uniform during the first few weeks trying for a position on the team.

Every place on the infield was open to new men except first base which had been occupied the previous season by Captain Fairless.

Malloy, who had played at short field the previous year, was shifted behind the bat. Second base seemed to be the greatest nut to 'crack, but just when Captain Fairless was about to give it up as a bad job our old friend "Pinkey" Spruhn made his appearance upon the field. After this there was no more anxiety about the second sack.

Manager Slesman had arranged for a strong schedule and the team went in to win. Out of eleven inter-collegiate games played seven were won and four lost; two of these, the University of Pittsburg game and the last game with Capital, because the men were out of condition. We opened the season with Heidelberg with the team in good condition. Mills' pitching and the batting of Park featured in this contest.

Then followed the strong University of Pittsburg. This was a regular batting fest and it seemed that neither side could field the ball with any degree of accuracy. Northern outbatted her opponents but made the most errors, losing the contest 15-13.

On May 1st our first game was played abroad with Capital University at Columbus. Main, the young Ada H. S. recruit, distinguished himself by holding his opponents scoreless until the tenth inning. A fluke hit was allowed by the umpire and the winning run scored.

The next home game was with the Ohio Medics, who were defeated with little effort.

Following this the Washington and Jefferson team came for a hard game. Main undoubtedly pitched the best game of his career against this University. The score was 4-2 in favor of Northern.

On May 14th the Chinese University of Honolulu took our measure to the tune of 8-1. Poor support of Mills in this game accounted for six of these runs.

The hard working Michigan Aggies, after having blanked Reserve the day before, came to Ada with the expectation of doing the same. In this they were much surprised, for at the end of the contest the score was 3-2 in favor of O. N. U. The brilliant pitching of Mills and the catching of Malloy were directly responsible for this victory.

The game with Antioch was an easy one for Northern, Mariott, a recruit pitcher, held them scoreless.

Otterbein though possessing a good fielding team were unable to use the bat to any great advantage. We took their scalp by a 4-3 vote.

Capital University of Columbus came back commencement week for the final game of the season. Northern's team was very badly organized, a number of the players having left for home. Mills, the star twirler of the season, had left, leaving us no one but Main with his sore arm and Mariott, the young south-paw.

The result was a victory for Capital 8-0.

THE MEN

"BENNY" FAIRLESS

Captain Fairless held down first base in a most excellent manner. However, his batting was up to that of the previous year.

"MALLY" MALLOY

The strongest link in Northern's infield was Malloy. He is undoubtedly the best catcher that ever donned a Northern uniform. He is not only a good back stop but his throwing arm is a wonder. Very few sacks were pilfered last season. At the bat he is a consistent batter.

"PINKEY" SPRUHN

Spruhn played his third and last season with Northern. At fielding ground balls he is unexcelled. His batting was a trifle below the average.

"KISSY" ROSS

Ross was a new recruit at the short-field position and played good ball with the exception of the last game when he was out of condition.

"BILL" STARRY

Starry was also a new man. He held down third sack in most excellent style. He is sure on ground balls and has a good throwing arm. "Bill" was one of the best sluggers on the team.

"STUMPY" STUMP

Stump the year before had played the short-field position but he was shifted by Captain Fairless to the outfield. Stump is one of the fastest fielders in college baseball.

"HOMY" PORTZ

Portz was our heavy port-side batter. He was always on the job with a hit when most needed. Portz held down the right field position in excellent style.

"BABE" ADAMS

Adams played left field in a startling manner until compelled to leave for home toward the end of the season. Babe is one of the fastest ground-coverers at O. N. U. With a little efficient coaching at the bat he will be a strong factor on any college team.

"SMILEY" YOUNG

Young acted as sub-catcher and outfielder. He could fill either of these positions in an excellent manner.

"PERRY" FORD

Ford was Northern's utility infielder. Always in condition to do his part he attributed much to the success of the team.

"CHARLEYMILLS

Mills was the star pitcher of the year. He showed up best in the Michigan Aggy game when he twirled the best ball of his career. Mills was not only a great pitcher but like Sisler of Michigan he was the heaviest slugger on the team. Some day we shall hear of this boy in the big leagues.

"CHET" MAIN

Main, the little Ada High School recruit, for his first year was a wonder. His two best games were twirled against Capital and W. and J. Universities.

"MARY") MARIOTT

Mariott was the only south-paw on the team. He pitched a good game against Antioch.

"PETE," ALLEN

"Pete" Allen, student manager, was always on the job and attributed much to the success of the team.

What did you do, O'Flaherty?
 They're aftei you, O'Flaherty.
 You got the people dancing ragtime
 In all the corners of the house
 The graphophones work over time
 Old maids can dance upon a dime
 This town got ragtime crazy
 Behind the times.

CHORUS

Ada's lost her dignity
 So has Smith and the faculty
 All hands are dancing to that
 Raggedy melody, full of originality
 The folks who live in Ada town
 Jump up and down
 When they hear the Lima tango
 Holly, Bake and Thevenet all are captured in a net
 Throwing their shoulders to that
 Raggedy melody, full of originality
 Some well known choir singers
 Have learned to snap their fingers
 This town goes round to the sound of the international rag.

Interlocutor (Beer) — Why yes, Snowball, I have two strapping big brothers.

Snowball—Say Mr. Int. didn't your father ever call for a short Beer?

Bones Robert — Mr. Int. do they allow gambling in this school?

Int.—No Bones, what made you ask that?

Bones—Oh yes they did for I done seed it.

Int.—Bones this is a serious charge. What kind of paraphernalia did you see?

Bones—Well sah, I done seed 'Dice in the rooms.

Sam Griffith—Mr. Incubator you heard about this insurrection the farmers held a short time ago?

Int.—Institute you mean. Yes Sam I heard about that. What of it?

Sam—Do you know what they held that for Mr. Executrix?

Int.—No Sam and maybe you can tell me why they met.

Sam—Well sah, all these farmers' cows had gone dry and they came here to find out what to do about it from Prof. Cotterman.

Int.—And did he tell them what to do, Sam?

Sam—I should say he did. He told them to go home and he would look the matter up and write them instructions. Here am a copy of the letter he wrote.

Dear Sirs:—This am a sad condition and to keep it from occurring again, churn your butter from ice cream; feed your cows on hay till they get hay fever, and milk-weed till they get milk-fever and to prevent this from occurring in the future, water your cows seventy-five times a day to keep them from getting dry.

Int.—Mose you have been drinking.

Mose Davis—No I ain't been drinking boss.

Int.—Now Mose I say you have been drinking.

Mose—An I says I hasn't. I ain't had no more drink since I came to this here town.

Int.—Enough of this Mose. I smell beer on your breath.

Mose—You smell beer on my breath—Oh! I knows what it is now sah, I'se been eating frogs' legs and you smell de hops.

Proposed Lehr Memorial

As a fitting and lasting monument to the labors of Doctor Henry S. Lehr, the beautiful and massive Lehr Memorial will soon be erected on the campus at Ada, Ohio.

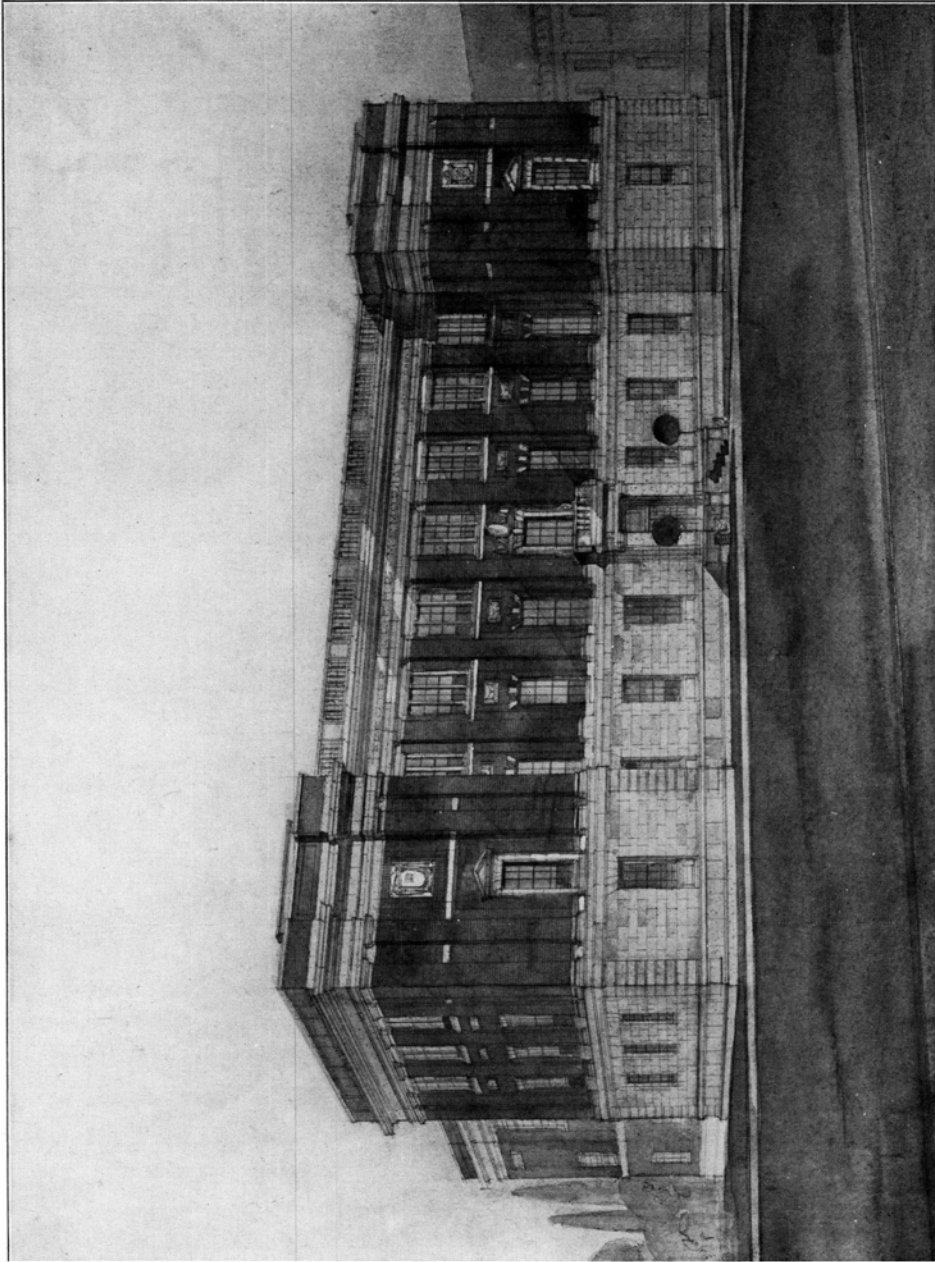

In the year 1907 the services of Rev. A. A. Thomas, an enthusiastic alumnus of the institution was secured as Field and Fiscal Secretary; since that time he has been active in securing funds for this worthy project. To him also has been assigned the task of securing funds for the College Farm. The approaching annual commencement will bring with it the glad message that these two funds and a few minor projects have reached a grand total of nearly $80,000.00, offerings largely of the graduates and ex-students of the University.

Since the last annual was issued two persons have given $1,000.00 each to this fund; namely, H. E. Myers of Springfield, Ohio, and Henry S. Lehr, the founder. Since the last annual report, a building committee has been appointed of which S. A. Bowman of Celina is Chairman. The contract has been let to Mr. Kircher of Athens, Ohio. Excavating for the foundation is nearing completion and the corner stone will be laid some time during the summer of 1914.

Several thousand dollars have already been received as cash and still the funds are rolling in. So it is easy to see that what was once thought to be impossible is now at the very doorway of a magnificent achievement.

PROPOSED AGRICULTURE BUILDING

Agriculture

"And he gave it for his opinion that whoever could make two ears of corn, or two blades of grass, to grow upon a spot of ground, where only one grew before, would deserve better of mankind, and do more essential service to his Country, than the whole race of politicians put together."—SWIFT.

The agriculture instruction at the University is rapidly advancing. It has been completely reorganized by the new Dean from the Ohio State University and now embraces a four year, two year, and special winter term course. It is designed to meet the needs of all those interested in Agriculture. The course of study is planned to give students a broad education and fit them for the business of farming. It consists of a thorough training in the science and modern methods of Agricultural practice.

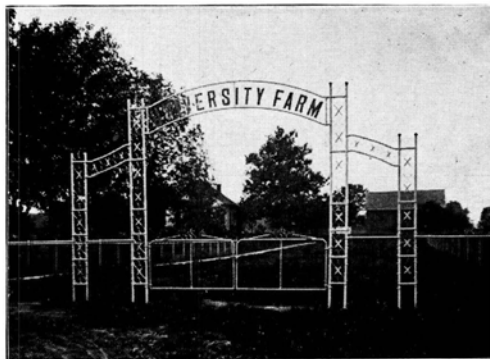

Agriculture Society

The Agriculture Society was organized by the students for the promotion of scientific Agriculture at Ohio Northern University. It is open to all those interested along this line. Interest has been manifested by the school as a whole, by the professors of other departments, the business men of Ada and the farmers of the surrounding community.

All important topics of modern agriculture are discussed not only by the students but also by farmers and business men. During the winter term we were addressed by E. E. McCoppin on the subject of, "Business principles as applied to agriculture," also by W. H. Powell a prominent swine breeder upon "Hog raising as found between the lines."

The officers for the winter term were President, LeRoy Frontz; Secretary, R. C. Bell; Treasurer, H. F. Wilson.

Agriculture

The Ohio Northern University is abreast of the times on the subject of agriculture. Aside from the state institutions, it was the first University in Ohio to establish an agricultural department. It has an up-to-date Dean, Prof. H. F. Cotterman of Ohio State University, a fifty acre College farm, ten acres of which are within the corporation of the village of Ada, for which nearly $9,000.00 has been subscribed in money besides pure bred stock and valuable implements, most of which has been donated by friends of the Institution. Of the nearly $9,000.00 in money secured by Sec. Thomas by the time the annual is published, more than $6,000.00 will have been paid into the farm fund.

And They Are All "Aggies."

Sayings, Wise and Otherwise

TAX THE BACHELOR?

Tax the bachelor? That should never be,
Though it seems his life were a luxury,
He was hopeful when his manhood began,
When he tried to court the sweet Mary Ann,
That his life would be one sweet happy song,
As pathways of life he treaded along;
But handsome Bill came frolicking by,
And changed the sweet song into a deep sigh.

Tax the bachelor? Add pain to the gall
That embitters his life, his hopes, and all
That in younger days was a sunny gleam
Of joy now faded to a horrid dream?
Me proposed to Mary, Katy, and Liz,
And asked proud Hazel, one day, to be his;
But they smiled on his suit, then turned away,
And with scornful accent, answered him, "Nay."

Tax the bachelor? No! Every one knows,
He's overtaxed now in mending his clothes,
In darning his socks, and finding his ties,
And digesting dough of restaurant pies.
He's lost half his buttons, the shirt he wears
Consists of a collar bounded by tears,
To keep things together, his shoes to find,
Is an exorbitant tax on his mind.

Tax the bachelor? No! The fault's not his
That Mary Ann, Hazel, Katy, and Liz.
Rejected his suit, and doomed him to roam
O'er deserts of life, cheerless and alone.
He's sorrowful, lonely, sad and depressed,
And his hair's growing thin 'long with the rest.
And joys of marriage he must read in books
For the lonely cuss can't help how he looks.

Beck: "Oh H—— Let's call this session off."

Stranger: "Where does Rube Bennett room?"

Student: "He rooms at the Lion's Paw Club but you will find him at Hartwell's on S. Gilbert St."

Prof. Raabe: "Williams, put this assay on the board."

Tony: "Can't do it."

Prof. R.: "Can you copy it out of the book?"

Tony: "No Sir."

Prof. R.: "DO it anyway."

Prof.: "What does 'Omnia hora,' mean R. J.?"

Rube: "Bed time." (snores from rear of room).

Prof. S.: "Tell us how to test volumetrically for an ic iron salt, Mr. Overhauls.*"

Jesse: Gives lengthy discussion.

Prof.: "Now Mr. Overhauls will you please repeat that, I was watching Mr. Ramos draw a picture up here."

Brownie: "Yes, sir. Iodine is an acid."

Prof. S.: "Anyone in the back row please tell me what gas is liberated in this re-action."

(After dead silence) Voice whispers: "Chlorine."

Back Row (Unanimously): "Chlorine."

Prof. S.: "Mr. Bendoryo, what condition is the starch in?"

Ben: "Ic condition."

Harry Hart, it is rumored, answered roll call six times during the year in Prof. Mohler's class because the "mail train," from the East, came in ahead of time. It is further that he got his letter written but four times in time to get to chapel.

In Quiz Class: "How many honeys are official, Hockaday?"

Bill: "Four, three in Pharmacopocia and one in Kentucky."

Prof.: "What is the base of Confection of Rose, Mr. Kress?"

Kress: "Red Rose."

Prof.: "What is a base, Mr. Kress?"

Kress: "A base is anything that will unite with an acid to form a salt."

Whitie: "How I do miss flowers."

Christy: "Had a blow up in lab. and also among the fair sex."

Arthur Schmidt: Loves to use perfume and hair tonic.

Ham: "Say Bus I got my girl's picture today."

Bus: "Good boy, I'll be up and look it over tonight."

Ham: "I'm going to charge ten cents a look, but come early and I will let you in for nothing."

Prof. Raabe: "Did you put this asafedita in my pocket Ramos?"

Ramos: "Maybe I did Prof. but I don't remember about it."

N. B. It is alleged that Mohler was the guilty party, for Raabe turned the Junior class over to him the day they made asafetida pills.

Backward, Turn Backward

By L. S. LEECH, Law, '12

Backward, turn backward, O time in your flight,
Set me again at Ma's table tonight.
I've grown, O, so weary of ossified steak,
Petrified biscuits, solidified cake,
Weary of paying for what I can't eat,
Sucking at soup-bones and calling it meat,
Tired of the butter, and milk, O so blue,
Mother, O Mother, my heart calls for you.

Mother, dear Mother, the years have been long,
Since I last heard the sound of the old dinner gong;
Ring it again and to me it will seem
That this time of want has been only a dream.
Give me some bread all coated with jam,
Buckwheat cakes and plenty of ham;
Fill me up chuck full of pudding and pie,
Then up to the fireside I'll drag me and die.

Backward, roll backward, ye sorrows and tears,
I am so tired of those canned roasting ears.
No nourishment in them, they give me a pain,
Take them and give me a meal once again.
Oft from the table the cheese do creep
And something like bed-bugs I see in my sleep.
O, that I had from my home sweets a bite,
Just to eat beefsteak again for tonight.

Mother, I long to be with you once more!
Just to be fed from the old pantry store.
Just to be back on the farm once again,
To hear the old cows and the cackling hens;
Then to eat eggs that were never embalmed,
And butter whose odor at least, has been calmed,
Just to have that ancient appetite strong,
For the grub here is certainly all going wrong.

Mother, dear mother, I'll soon be a fright.
My shirt is all torn and my buttons not right;
Holes in my coat and in my socks too
And the knees of my breeches are just coming through,
Over my ward-robe your mending hand sweep,
Free of these troubles at last I can sleep.
Cover my bare spots and rescue from shame
The glory and pride of the old family name.

Feed me, O mother, again as of yore,
This one last thing, dear, of thee I implore.
I am so sick of it all the way through,
Those winnies and krout and the rest of the stew,
Bring on smoked sausage, so long, and so lean,
And plenty of milk all covered with cream,
Then into your arms once again let me creep,
Rock me to sleep, mother, rock me to sleep.

Friday Evening With Beelzebub and His Legions

BeelzebubD. R. Duckworth
 MolochHerman Romaker
 DavisLandlord

Said Beelzebub to Moloch
 This is our night for play
 We will gather in the legions
 And have Hell all our way.
 Then answers back Old Moloch.....
 Who's more corrupt than pure
 Just gather in your legions
 And we'll raise Hell for sure.
 Then with mighty rumblings
 Like the pent up winds of night
 Which set Old Davis grumbling
 When the legions came in sight.
 They kneel before Old Beelzebub
 And hail him as their king,
 They swear allegiance ever
 And at his command, do anything.
 First his Imperial Majesty
 Guided by Moloch's scheming head
 Ascended to the third floor
 And broke down Balz' bed.
 His legions work in darkness
 As well as broad day light
 So they put the hammer to the fuse
 Before Davis comes in sight.
 Old Beelzebub grows weary
 And lays him down to rest
 But the Legions carry on the work
 And do their very best.
 They fill a sack with water
 They raise a thundering din
 It's to be dropped upon the head
 Of the first one that butts in.
 So Davis was the victim
 He commits the awful sin
 Which for his useless trouble,
 They soaked him to the skin.
 So hail the power of Satan
 And the schemes of Moloch too,
 And all glory to the Legions
 To whom much credit's due.
 ALLEN G. COLE, Poet Laureate of the Davis House

Notes On Beelzebub and His Legions

By HERMAN B. ROMAKER

The poem opens with a view of the Davis House in the Sanctum Sanctorum of Moloch. Beelzebub and Moloch holding a conference. It has been found recorded in the Archives of Hell that Beelzebub in this poem was Benton R. Duckworth. He was given this name because his character was symbolical of Satan. He was known to be immortal, because he solved problems and swore oaths which no mortal would have been able of doing.

The second stanza brings the character of Moloch. This character is no other than Herman B. Romaker. He was called Moloch because he was very corrupt. As Milton says, "He was symbolical of homicide, his hands are besmeared with the blood of many murders." Romaker was formerly a Priest but as mentioned he fell from grace, hence excommunicated. Accordingly he is now chief devil of the Cast Iron Club, of the Royal Invincible Legions of Beelzebub, and plans and helps to execute most of their nefarious, diabolical chicanery. His Sanctum Sanctorum is the Hall where the Cast Iron Club—Beelzebub and all his legions—meet to think out their plots. The legions of Beelzebub are the other members of the Den of Infamy (Davis House). They consist of Herr H. T. O. Blue, to whom we confess all our crimes, Allen G. Cole, the Devil who keeps the fire going, and upon Beelzebub much depends. Rev. Cyrus Townsend Broede, who tells us of our sins and tries to bring us back to the paths of duty and righteousness. Other famous members are Rev. Charles Groesbeck, and pride of the Davis House and millionaire paper manufacturer, John Hayden, the Irish comedian of the Infernal Regions, lawyer Riley, who tries all cases (of beer) of the Club. Herr Balz, who uses a wart on the back of his neck for a collar button, Mr. Kadel, millionaire man of leisure. "Brick" Bailey, who is studying Pharmacy, in order to find out how to grow hair on the nigger heads of his native State of Massachusetts.

Also we have two members but recently initiated, Whitmore and Johansen, who have not as yet become famous, except to bring order out of Chaos, after the legions have struck their room. Several of our most prominent Devils were expelled last term by the Archangel St. Micheal (B. F. Davis) for the incident mentioned in stanzas 8 & 9. They were Buffalo Bill Moore, "Sister" Westbrook, who was so cross-eyed that he had to lie on his back to look in a well. And on one occasion he and Hotchkiss becoming enraged, it has been reported by the legions "that so frowned the mighty combatants that Hell (third floor) grew darker at their frown." Brother Lowe E. E., the man that shot the fuses, when St. Micheal entered Pandemonium. Brother Simpson, who was a very active member, never hesitated to do the bidding of Beelzebub in carrying out the plans of Moloch. Mead Moore, who had charge of the Artillery of the legions. At present Prof. Eby lectures daily on Eugenics. On the third floor room two Giants—Pratt and Almond, the sleepless wonders, who when desiring recreation amuse themselves by conducting a shooting-gallery, that is shooting abnormal inhabitants of their room. So here's to his Excellency ? the Archangel St. Micheal, may he long live to see the legions conquer and rule over the vast realms of Pandemonium, the Davis House.

Suppose

Suppose that heart-flowers, pure and sweet,
Were painted by the sun
Where lovers' pathways chance to meet,
To blend into but one,
Would it badly blight the fruit tree,
Or make its blooms less fair,
Were flow'rs from ~~off~~ the blooming tree
Plucked by them walking there?

Suppose the purest brightest gem
Of thought was in the flowers,
Its beauty paintings seen by them
Throughout the passing hours,
Would it becloud their sunny skies—
Change sunshine into gloom—
Change merry laughter into sighs,
From having plucked the bloom?

Suppose that joys were never fled
From hearts that beat most true,
And true love's blossoms ne'er were dead
But bright long ages through,
Would it bedim the passing years
With clouds, or sorrow's showers,
Or change love's smiles to bitter tears,
Because were picked the flowers?

Suppose the sweetest, purest flowers
That bloomed along their way,
Were freshened by the true heart's showers,
Of love throughout life's day,
Would it be best to hide their bloom,
Where love's sun never shines,
And shut their fragrance in the tomb
For fairer, heav'nly climes?

Suppose the blossoms were not cast
Aside for garlands gay
Through fleeting years while life should last
Nor e'er were thrown away,

Would it be best to let them bask
Alone in evening dew:
Their beauty from joy's heart to mask
While it goes ages through?

Suppose that on life's lonely ways,
Were never picked the flowers;
That purest joys were hid always
Within some secret bowers,
Would it be best, when life is fled,
That others pluck the bloom,
That while they sorrow's teardrops shed,
Place them upon the tomb?

Suppose that all the blooms were left
For days when friends were gone;
None from the lovely tree bereft,
As they had passed along,
Would sweeter their mem'ries be,
Or deeper be the gloom,
When flowers from off the blooming tree
Were placed upon the tomb?

Suppose we picked the brightest flowers
That bloom along the way,
That change to sunshine, darkest hours,
When dreary seems the day
Would not their fragrance help to cheer
The lonely saddened hearts,
And earthly beauties seem more dear
As gloom from them departs?

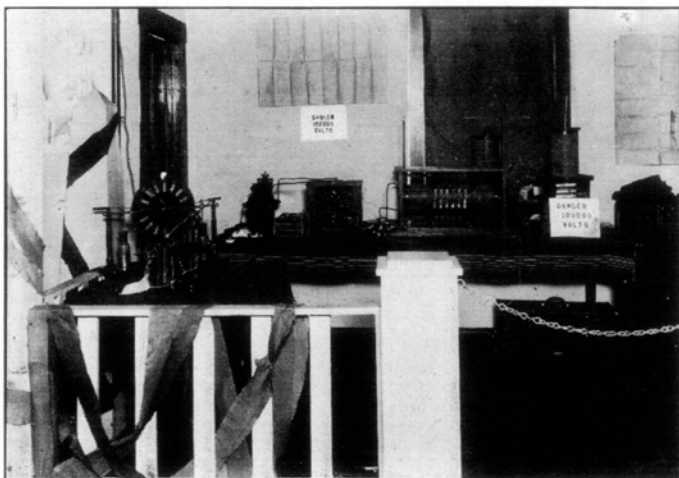

Suppose that down the vale of life
Where joys and cares abound,
Where grow the thorns of bitter strife,
True heart-flowers could be found,
Would not the pangs from thorns and care
Be better borne each day,
If heart-flowers always blooming there,
Were picked along the way?

The White Parade

What means this eager, anxious throng
That moves so steadily along
In night attire of pearly gown
Like earth when snow comes floating down?

What means this grand, ghost-like array
In which, in style, thou dost display
A new design, superb, replete,
Of skirts divided and complete?

Is this some dream of specters white,
That fills my mind with visions bright,
Or do I now, in fact, survey
Pure flesh and blood in costume gay?

It is no dream, alas, alack!
I feel a chill creep o'er my back,
And when repeated o'er and o'er,
I sigh for Cuba's heated shore.

A chill goes to my ev'ry bone
And makes me long for home, sweet home,
I long for a hat, for coat, and vest
And other things 'long with the rest.

When Pharmics march and Engineers,
And make night merry with their cheers,
They have decreed, come woe or weal,
That all must march in dishabille.

And have decreed that all must fly
To join the ranks now surging by;
And though I long for rest instead,
I listen to their heavy tread.

O, spirits wild, or spectres gray,
Departed saints, from earth away,
Protect, absolve, in earthly ills,
Me from the charms of Pharmic's pills.

And from the measured, chosen space,
Of cold gray earth, a resting place,
Which engineers, with skill and pains
Design for aught of man's remains.

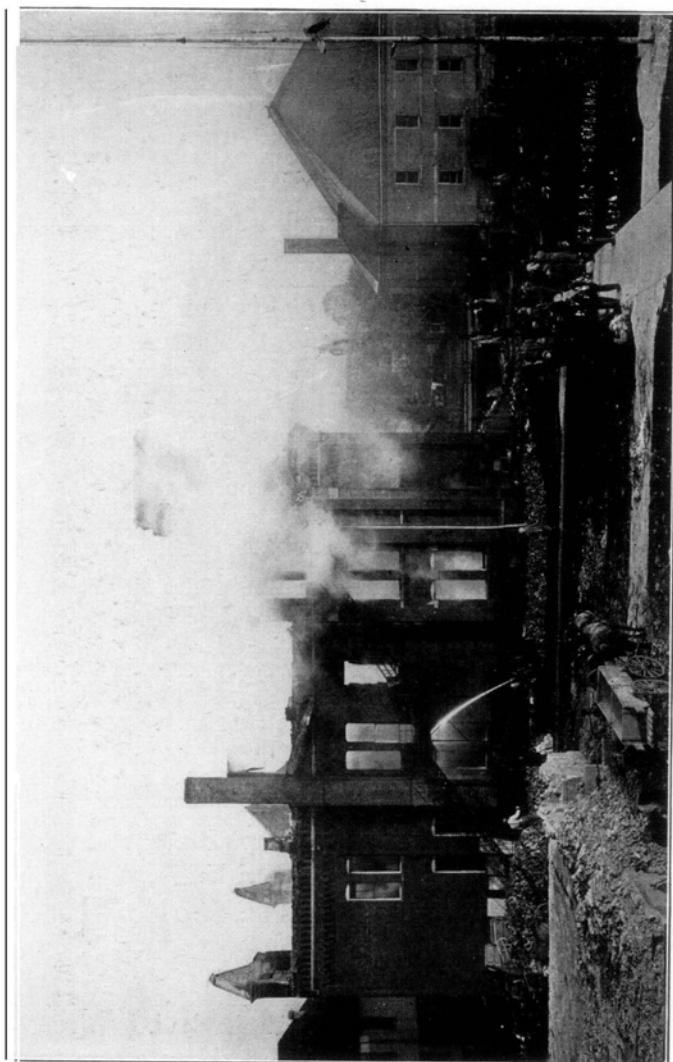

For in these lines of snowy white,
Suggestive of the spirit's flight,
When'er the soul from mortal hies
To unknown lands beyond the skies,

I see the spirits, hear the tread,
Of men now numbered with the dead,
And trembling lest with them I stray
Into the night I steal away.

L'Envoi

Now that our book is nearly completed, we stop for a moment to think it all over. The amount of work required was greater than we supposed, but it involved more pleasure also.

Particularly was this so in our relations with the business men with whom we came in contact. To Mr. Sher of the Bureau of Engraving we owe many suggestions and an encouragement and co-operation at all times. To Mr. Ward, we owe what merit the book may have typographically. They have given us real assistance in our work of the kind which meant more than merely filling their contract. Acknowledgment should also be made of the courtesy and uniform good work of the Paeszler Studio.

In the making of this book, we have formed friendships "more lasting than brass" and we have learned to know ourselves and each other more fully. As we look thru the book we realize that it is far from perfect but we think it portrays our community life here as it is. We hope that you will appreciate it because it is a book of Ohio Northern and we of 1914 shall love it for that reason and because it is our own.

Thus endeth the 4th volume of the Northern of the Ohio Northern University, as published by the Class of Nineteen Fourteen.

Lives of Seniors oft remind us,
That they strive to do their best,
And departing leave behind them
Notebooks that will help the rest.

Students, Attention

How about a fine enlargement from that negative you recently had for the 1914 Northern?

Not a monstrosity, rather a medium-sized one — they are more in keeping with the modern home — one in which quality outweighs quantity.

Our matchless sepias are unsurpassed for work of this nature. They make an ideal present, particularly when framed in a beautiful oval antique or a square with built in corners such as we are showing

We frame pictures and diplomas with the same exacting care that we give to your photographic wants and the relation of colors are carefully considered.

“Has so much to do with the finished product,” you know.

Largest assortment — The cheaper kind? — Yes — Better if you wish them.

Your negatives carefully preserved and duplicates or enlargements from same may be had at any time. Mail orders receive our careful attention.
